Johnson Lists Defense Plans For Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson details for Congress today his view that U.S. military power is second to none and that he will keep it that way.

Johnson, two days away from his inauguration to a full four-year term, arranged to lay out his defense policy in a special message.

It was his sixth special message since Congress returned to work on Jan. 4.

Addressing the Senate and House on the State of the Union that night, the President said:

"In this period, we have built a military power strong enough to meet any threat and destroy any adversary.

"And that superiority will continue to grow so long as the office is mine — and you sit on Capitol Hill."

This was all he said about defense at that time, leaving details to the special message and the budget message due next week.

Johnson can, if he wishes, scoop his own budget message and disclose a liberal defense figure.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara disclosed just before Christmas that defense spending next fiscal year might fall about $500 million below this year's estimated $49.8 billion.

Willshaw Makes Bid

3 More Mayoral Aspirants Enter

New impetus was given political campaigns today in three district communities with the entry of three mayoralty candidates and the announcement of a fourth that he intends to file.

Council President George E. Willshaw entered Saturday for the Republican nomination for mayor in East Liverpool and the action was seen as a firm indication Mayor Merrill D. Hall does not intend to seek a second term. He also is a Republican.

A two-way race for the nomination of the Democratic mayoralty candidate at the primary election in Wellsville was promised today with the announcement of Mayor William Daugherty that he will seek a third term and the filing by Mrs. Mary Rahter, Council president, for the post.

Mayor Daugherty said he plans to file his petition within the next few days. He is serving his second consecutive term as mayor.

A Monty Muntean of 22 Morris St., Lisbon, an insurance agent, filed this morning for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Lisbon.

Other new candidates are S. James Welch, 1008 St. John St., for the Republican nomination as Third Ward councilman.

Robert T. Mason entered for the Democratic nomination as Second Ward councilman in Wellsville.

William A. Seidner of Lisbon filed for the GOP nomination as Lisbon mayor. The other entrant was Donald T. Gormley as a Republican candidate for Columbiana Council.

Willshaw is in his first term as Council president, but previously served four terms as a member-at-large.

After Crash Fatal To 30

Wichita Spurs Cleanup

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The cleanup and the questions continued on Piatt St. today.

Shock gave way to grief among survivors of the 30 people who died Saturday when a KC135 jet tanker loaded with fuel smashed into the quiet section of modest homes in northeast Wichita.

It was the city's worst disaster.

The toll included 23 residents of the area and seven crewmen of the plane which left McConnell Air Force Base three minutes before it plunged almost vertically into the street.

Five houses were consumed by the flaming fuel which splashed from broken tanks. Only the shells remained of six houses and 25 others were damaged.

As identification of the dead was established the bodies were moved from a temporary morgue at the County Health Department to funeral homes.

Emmit J. Warmley, 37, his pregnant wife and their three children were among the dead.

Albert Bolden, 22, his wife and their three children also died in the holocaust.

Sharon Dale, 15, was on a baby-sitting job when her mother, Alice A. Dale, 46, and 2-year-old sister, Cheryl Ann, died.

Harvey Dale, the father and husband, was at work.

Three Days Of Partying Get Under Way

Capital Has Eye On Weatherman As Inauguration Festivities Begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The capital starts whooping it up for Lyndon B. Johnson officially today, and only a dubious weatherman stands in the way of what could be one of the liveliest inaugurations since Andrew Jackson's.

Three days of partying and assorted rejoicings begin with a reception for distinguished ladies this afternoon followed by tonight's Democratic gala. This is a mammoth variety show, with an all-star cast of singers, dancers and comedians.

Hostess Perle Mesta gave a big party Sunday night at her penthouse apartment. But it was a private affair — not part of the official inaugural week activities. The 300 guests included Vice President-elect and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey, Lynda Johnson, singer-actress Carol Channing, inaugural chairman Dale Miller and many members of Congress.

President Johnson returned Sunday night from a weekend in Texas, ready to celebrate his sweeping victory over Republican Barry Goldwater.

Not until the five inaugural balls are over sometime Wednesday night is Johnson likely to have another quiet moment. He planned to get in some work today on his inaugural address.

For all the accent on the gaiety, if you needed one word to describe official Washington today that word would have to be: apprehension.

With snow on the ground, more snow in the forecast for tomorrow and temperatures huddling in the 20s, the climatic possibilities are sobering if not downright frightening. The forecast for Tuesday: fair and cold.

Inauguration after inauguration, it's not so much what they say here, but the conditions under which they shiver and shake.

On the eve of John F. Kennedy's inauguration in 1961 an eight-inch snow, swirling in gusts of up to 32 miles an hour, so tied up traffic you would have thought the capital was barricaded.

Such recent nightmares, coupled with such uncertain forecasts, could hold down the crowds, even though Johnson throughout the campaign extended invitations lavishly.

Sunday night, coming back from Texas, he brought along so many friends on the presidential plane his staff members were displaced and had to ride another aircraft.

Curiously, Andrew Jackson, away back in 1829, seems to have come closest to Johnson in inviting all his friends to come.

Some 20,000 did, crowding into the White House and creating such suffocating confusion that Jackson eventually had to flee the too-friendly mob.

Well, Johnson hasn't gone that far.

Security precautions, much stronger since Kennedy's assassination, will keep everyone in his place unless he has a ticket. The 20,000 who will be dancing Wednesday night will have paid $25 each for the privilege.

Almost obscured by all the sideshows is the main point: the simple swearing-in ceremony at noon Wednesday, and the inaugural address.

Johnson worked on his speech Sunday, but there is no hint as to what he will stress or how long he will talk. Since the President spoke to the nation over television and radio in his State of the Union speech Jan. 4, and since he has sent a batch of messages to Congress, the guess would be that he will keep this one short.

Gosneys In Capital, Find Weather Chilly

"It's cold in the Capital," Don Gosney, Columbiana County Democratic chairman, reported this morning from Washington, where he and his wife arrived last night to attend inauguration ceremonies.

Gosney, who is staying at the Fairfax Hotel, is among a number of Columbiana County residents at Washington or planning to attend. Robert Curran, candidate for the Democratic mayoral nomination, and Harry McConville, president of the Board of Education already are on the scene.

William Rahter of Cincinnati, assistant regional director for the Postal Department and former Wellsville resident, is there with his wife.

Lawrence Drane's Body Discovered In Wrecked Car

A 46-year-old Calcutta area steelworker, apparently killed late last night when his car plunged over a steep embankment along the hill section of the Smiths Ferry - Calcutta Rd., was discovered in the auto this morning about 9.

Lawrence Drane of the Old Fredericktown Rd. apparently was fatally injured when his sedan went off the edge of the roadway and some 70 yards down the hillside while he was returning from work.

St. Clair Constable Lester McElhany said the car was on its wheels, but had struck a couple of small trees, breaking them off.

The site is at the lower section of the hill leading from Pennsylvania Route 68, and not far from an old dump.

Police said his wife telephoned to officials this morning, reporting her husband had not returned from his job.

Shortly afterward, Bob Barker of near Longs Run reported the auto had been spotted down the hillside, Constable McElhany said.

Smith Gets Oath In West Virginia

CHALESTON (AP) — Hulett Carlson Smith was sworn in as West Virginia's 27th governor today and promised to "demand the highest standards of ethics, integrity and honesty from dedicated and qualified public servants and never tolerate incompetence or mediocrity."

The 46-year-old Beckley Democrat, in an inaugural address which followed administration of the oath of office by President Judge Chancey Browning of the State Supreme Court, reaffirmed a campaign pledge to conduct "an administration of excellence."

SMITH SET forth his goals only in general terms, saving specifics for his first address to the legislature. But he gave first mention to schools and roads, in that order. Speaking from a temporary platform on the north steps of the State Capitol, Smith told the outdoor audience:

"First, I am determined that excellence in education will be our No. 1 goal. . . . We must improve our schools, so that every child will have the best possible teacher, and every teacher the best possible salary and classroom."

"Educational excellence must extend from our grade schools through our colleges and universities."

"The pursuit of excellence must also be extended to the road programs of West Virginia. . . . Through careful use of highway funds, and through systematic planning, we can accelerate the building of the road system which West Virginia has long needed, and which is now within our reach."

Officer Cites Man In Crash

A Klondike motorist was cited by police following a two-way mishap Saturday at 4:06 p. m. on Pennsylvania Ave. at Line St.

He is William M. Jones, 63, of 2221 Harvey Ave., whose 1961 model four-door sedan was involved in a mishap with a parked 1965 two-door sedan owned by H. A. Dray, 1500 Etruria St.

Patrolman Samuel E. Hayes, who investigated, cited Jones on a charge of driving without an operator's permit.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff this morning, Jones entered a plea of guilty, but explained he had applied for a new permit.

Judge Chertoff continued the case until Jan. 27 to permit the defendant to produce a new license.

Jones said he was traveling east on Pennsylvania Ave. when the driver of the parked car opened a door into his path.

There was damage to the right side of the Jones car and the left door and side of the Dray auto, police said.

Wheelbase is the common term applied to the distance between the front and the rear axles of a car.

Own Runaway Auto

Hits Injured Woman

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Police Sgt. Wayne Lecroy said he had seen it happen — a car leave the scene of a collision, circle driverless in a field and return to run over its owner, lying injured.

Lecroy said the car veered into the darkness Sunday night after hitting a pickup truck. Marie Ivey, 35, of Lubbock, the driver, fell out.

Tracks showed the car circled a quarter of a mile before returning and hitting Mrs. Ivey as she lay at an intersection. She was taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

Lecroy said the car — headlights knocked out — almost hit him as he directed traffic, then plowed into his cruiser at an estimated speed of 35 miles an hour. He theorized the accelerator had jammed.

brother, Gary Linn Martin, 17, died at the scene. They were the only sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Martin Sr., who went into seclusion with relatives after the father identified his sons.

While military and civilian authorities carried on the grim task of cleaning up the area seven local businessmen set about finding livable homes for those displaced by the tragedy. Fire Chief T. A. McGaughey estimated damage to civilian property at $155,000. The plane was valued at $3 million.

Utilities in the crash area were shut off because of broken water and gas mains. They were largely restored Sunday night but not before many residents in undamaged houses spent a cold night at home.

Brig. Gen. Murray A. Bywater, named to head an investigation of the crash, said everything about the plane's take-off was normal.

Bywater said the craft, loaded with 80 tons of fuel for a test mission with a B52 bomber, was given clearance to make a left turn and climb on a prescribed course.

"In a very few seconds," he said, "the pilot (Capt. Chester Szmuc of Royalton, Ohio; called Mayday, Mayday, Mayday, and gave his call sign. The controller operator cleared him to land and asked what his trouble was."

"There was no reply," Bywater said the plane was dumping fuel but that it was too early in the investigation to say whether the pilot had power or control difficulties.

The Most Controversial Issue

To those who think of politics as an emotional process, often having slight effect on actual government, President Johnson's promise to press for repeal of Sec. 14-B of the Labor Management Act is a case in point.

This is the right-to-work issue. Sec. 14-B provides that states may forbid agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment.

Unless such agreements have been expressly forbidden, employers may require membership as a condition of employment. This is done under the union-shop pattern of unionization, which provides that workers need not be union members when hired but must join the union within a specified time.

Every argument about these laws discloses the same curious thing. Adversaries can start out with similar, even identical, facts and principles and come to opposite conclusions.

THE REASON is obvious.

In principle, compulsion to make any American join any organization in order to sustain himself in a job or in his group is odious.

In practice, compulsion to make all employees being bargained for collectively by an officially designated labor union join the union is a matter of union survival.

Right-to-work laws have not been promoted by friends of unionism. The real aim of the laws, union leaders point out, is to weaken unions. Recognizing this, unions have fought the right-to-work movement to a standstill.

No one who knows the weaknesses as well as the strength of unionism as it has evolved since the '30s would claim that all unions live up to their responsibility.

But no one who has followed this issue and remembers that the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio grasped the importance of union security when the Taft-Hartley Act was being pushed through Congress can be oblivious to the real issue in Sec. 14-B. It is whether the unions can withstand attacks on their security.

THE RIGHT-TO-WORK movement has made no headway since 1958 when it collapsed in Ohio, dragging down a popular governor and a supposedly unbeatable U.S. senator with it.

The argument now is not over the principle of union security, which has been solidly established. It is whether unions can demonstrate in the 89th Congress what they have demonstrated in the states — that they have the political influence to wipe off the statutes a provision offensive to them.

This has been called the most controversial recommendation in President Johnson's state-of-the-union message. Without any doubt, it will be the most bitterly fought, though the issue itself is academic as far as any direct effect is concerned.

An Old American Custom

It is remarkable how political discussion in this country so frequently glides over the central fact of the two-party system. The central fact is the way voters throw out the ins and put in the outs.

When public opinion tires of an officeholder, nothing can reverse the trend destined to carry him out of office.

Conversely, until public opinion tires of an office holder nothing can offset the tendency to keep him in power.

Nothing could have saved Harry Truman when his welcome was worn out. The outward-bound was established so strongly that even a new candidate, Adlai Stevenson, could not save the Democrats.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, on the other hand, could not be dislodged in three attempts. Thomas E. Dewey could not even dislodge Mr. Truman in 1948, because the Roosevelt image was still inviolable.

Coming up to the present, Lyndon B. Johnson could not have been dislodged in 1964 by any Republican candidate, let alone a candidate who split his party in the attempt.

And looking ahead to 1968, only one thing can keep Mr. Johnson from being the favorite for a second term. That would be a nationwide trend against him and his administration — a throw-the-rascals-out movement.

Those worrying about the two-party system because they fear the Republicans will have nothing to run on in the future should bear in mind that the party out of power gains ascendancy only when the party in power slips from favor.

Ideologies have little effect when that happens. Voters are not looking for new ideologies when they change administrations.

They are looking for new faces to replace faces they have grown tired of and voices they have wearied of hearing.

It's an old American custom.

Sermonette By Albert Schweitzer

The 90th birthday of world-famed Dr. Albert Schweitzer was celebrated by the doctor and his friends Jan. 14 at his jungle hospital at Lambarene, Republic of Gabon, a division of the French Community in Africa.

It long has been a matter of extraordinary interest that so many people are aware of this extraordinary man who has grown old and respected in the service of his fellowmen. It is as though Dr. Schweitzer had been preaching a doctrine that had reached their minds but never had touched their hearts. They have heard of him. They are not sure why.

What is the message of his life? Has it not revealed that the only pure esteem a man can earn must be distilled from the sum total of his good intentions? It is what a man tries to do in behalf of his fellowmen that matters.

Dr. Schweitzer's primitive hospital in Africa wouldn't be allowed to stay open if some of his younger contemporaries could make the decision.

The old doctor and his methods long have been an affront to better trained and more efficient members of the medical profession.

Even his ideas about philosophy and mankind in general are disturbing to many. So, aside from his musical talent, what causes him to be respected?

It is because he loves his fellowmen and has tried to show it throughout his long life. And lo, the name of Albert Schweitzer — who loved his fellow men — leads all the rest.

Letter From Max

Dear Truman Twill:

Your Uncle George had some amusing remarks to make about that expert who advised tossing a new rooster in among the hens to keep them active and reduce their cholesterol, but he doesn't know much about the care of a laying flock to promote egg production.

All the chicken books, at least 20 years ago, recommended keeping roosters out of the flock so the hens could concentrate on laying, without dissipating their energy and nerves worrying about over-attentive roosters.

By the time you get this, we may have too much snow, but as of this writing spare some commiseration for merchants stuck with galoshes, mittens, scarfs, earmuffs, skis, sleds, ice skates, snow shovels, salt, tire chains, antifreeze and all the other requisites to cope with inclement winter weather. You must not be getting much amortization out of your snowblower this clement season.

Opinion is divided on whether Mrs. Burton should give up her U.S. citizenship to become an exclusive Briton, but a large body of thought in this country considers her at least a minor national asset, entirely aside from the tax angle. They view her as in a class with, say, the Teton Mountain Range, which everybody should see, if possible.

Shopping experts tell me that pipe cleaners are practically unobtainable at stores at times, probably because of the increase in pipe smoking since the reports on cigarette health hazards.

A television broadcast of an Australian football game provided a version of mayhem similar to our football, only the Australians were without benefit of padding. Each team had 18 men. The rules were described as "complicated." Hah! Real quick, Twill, what is the difference between a safety and a touchback in our football? Or how about a foul-tip third strike in baseball? Added touches in that Australian game were goal judges dressed in white raincoats and hats to match.

By Martin Miller

Our setbacks in guerrilla warfare always surprise me. Americans used such tactics against the British in the Revolutionary War and our pioneers had to fight Indians that way.

The item in the paper about the guy who put out a dictionary with the words spelled phonetically for people who didn't know how to spell reminded me of our old family joke about two scholarly lady relatives who could not find the word "sergeant" in the dictionary because they were looking under "sarg—."

Wish we could have a nice friendly discussion about your recent statement: "Circumstances alter cases, but I don't believe circumstances alter principles." Heaven help us all. Whose principles you talking about — yours or mine? ... So long, Sarg.

Faithfully yours,
MAX

Odd Facts

Even though it is much smaller, the moon appears to the naked human eye to be the same size as the sun. This is because the sun, although it is some 400 times larger than the moon, is about 400 times as far away.

Canada has the longest coastline of any country in the world. Including islands, it extends about 60,000 miles along the Atlantic Ocean, Arctic Ocean and Pacific Ocean, and the great inland sea of Hudson Bay.

Nearly one-third of the United States consists of forest land, including more than 1,000 different kinds of trees.

That Rainy Day

They 'Have Torch Will Travel'

By Victor Riesel

Enterprising Cosa Nostra chieftains, ever seeking new money - making "businesses", have developed a multi-million dollar "fire - for-hire" network operating successfully in 10 states.

With characteristic disdain for local law enforcement agencies, the Mafia syndicate leaders actually have put their arson specialists on the road soliciting business.

Their "clientele" are other leaders of organized crime who want fires set or places bombed into flames in order to collect insurance money on profitless restaurants and bars; or to terrorize legitimate restaurateurs or to warn unions to stay in line.

So successful has been the solicitation of the "have-torch-will-travel" advance men that the authorities believe they and local arsonists were responsible for 904 fraudulent fires of property insured for $36.5 million in 1964 alone.

REPORTS of the mobs' soliciting fire - setting business were confidentially turned over to the Justice Department last year by the country's leading authority on the traveling "torches." He is Brendan "Pete" Battle, manager of the Arson, Theft and Fraud Department, National Board of Fire Underwriters, headquartered in New York City.

"Where a few years before, practically all attempted frauds had been individual acts of desperation," Mr. Battle said recently, "on the part of individual homeowners, small merchants or other businessmen, it was now found that professional fire-setters were soliciting business and taking care of a number of customers, most often in the same general area or in the same type of business enterprise."

In other words, the hoodlums' traveling arsonists — some of whom have gone as far as 1,000 miles on a job — are specialists.

MOST OF THEM concentrate in the Midwest states, but especially in the Chicago metropolitan area. However, since they operate in the same manner as professional gunmen, they live elsewhere and belong to distant sections of the Cosa Nostra.

Some rings discovered by Pete Battle and his flying squads consist of three men. But there have been as many as ten for a major job which requires considerable planning. Obviously there are plenty of arsonists, since some of their rings have been discovered in a total of 17 states ranging from upper New York to Florida, from the Southwest away up to Alaska. Some of these have been wiped out, especially in New York and in the Southwest, according to the Fire Underwriters' reports.

This was accomplished by a unique system of intelligence about which Pete Battle will not talk. However, he did say not too long ago:

"A most gratifying and helpful development in the field of fraud fire investigation has resulted from the ready availability, countrywide, of special agents of this department to whom confidential information bearing on contemplated or anticipated fires is channeled..."

MR. BATTLE is the authority on the organized criminal syndicates and the torch-for-hire business. He reports that "more and more frequently" his men have found the links between professional fire setting and the Cosa Nostra.

Some of the "torch" specialists were at the 1947 "cook-out" crime convention in Apalachin, N.Y. One of the fire - setting group is a Mafia chief from the Pittston, Pa., district. Records reveal he is in the garment business.

Fire setting by individuals of this type is also commonplace in their own local areas of operation. Some of those in the fire-for-hire operation are well known to the federal and local authorities as veteran racketeers mixed up in industrial rackets extortion, narcotics, prostitution, for many years.

MR. BATTLE charges bluntly that "snydicate - hoodlums" are believed to have been responsible for recent criminal fire-setting in at least 10 states in the East and Midwest.

Bombings and arsons by these hoodlums are commonplace in the Metropolitan Chicago area and in two or three states along the Eastern Seaboard. ... We have been encountering with increasing frequency interstate travel on the part of gangland torches who have been given contracts calling for the destruction of business premises by fire.

"Racketeers have learned that fire-setting can be a very lucrative source of income through insurance collection as well as a weapon to be used as intimidation for organizing purposes or for eliminating business competitors."

As a result of the vast compilation of fire-fraud evidence by the Fire Underwriters, the Justice Department has launched a drive for inclusion of arson in a special law which would permit the FBI to go after the fire-for-hire merchants.

Course For GOP

By David Lawrence

Members In Congress Seen Key To Hopes

Whether Dean Burch voluntarily resigned or there was a forced change in the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee is of little relevance or significance as far as the fortunes of the Republican party in the future are concerned. Nor is it of any David Lawrence real importance just now who is aspiring to be the Republican presidential nominee in 1968.

The plain truth is that, unless the Republican party becomes a party of constructive opposition and effectively turns public opinion toward its side on major issues, Lyndon B. Johnson may be able to achieve nine consecutive years in the presidency.

The Republicans in recent weeks have put so much emphasis on their internal squabbles that they haven't seen the forest for the trees. Actually, the Republican national chairman doesn't make Republican policy or mobilize public sentiment on the issues of the day.

Everett Dirksen, leader of the Republican party in the Senate, made a realistic statement of the whole situation when he said that the members of the joint Senate and House Republican leadership in their conversations since the November defeat have discussed numerous paths that might be followed by the party, but that "always certain basic facts have emerged," which are:

"First, that the only elected Republican officials of the federal establishment are the 32 Republican members of the United States Senate and the 140 members of the House of Representatives."

OBVIOUSLY and beyond dispute, they will guide Republican president and vice president, by the record they write in the Congress. It's their responsibility.

"Second, that an additional repository of advice and counsel on party policy exists in former presidents and nominees for president, in our present elected governors, in the members of the Republican National Committee and the state chairmen of our several states, and, of course, in active Republican advocates at all other levels of the party structure. Their wisdom must be channeled into party policy formulation."

This is but another way of saying that, while advice is acceptable and all viewpoints from governors and former presidential nominees should be heard, the responsibility for making party policy rests with the Republican members of Congress who are dealing every day with national issues. It's the way these legislative questions are handled which can mean victory or defeat in elections.

THE REPUBLICANS in Congress have elected Gerald Ford as their new leader in the House of Representatives, and from his public statements there are indications that he is well aware of the difference between the making of party policy in Congress and the mechanics of party organization throughout the country which is usually left to the chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Even with the selection of new leaders and a renewed enthusiasm on the part of the Republicans in Congress to do an effective job for their party, the fact remains that the making of party policy cannot be left to the individual predilections of would-be candidates or to some of those young Republicans in different parts of the country who do not yet know the facts of national political life.

Thus, for instance, many of the so-called moderates are talking about formulating alternative programs, little realizing that this is one way to get lost in a plethora of details and controversial technicalities. The main function of a minority party is to tell the nation what's wrong with the majority party's policies and to explain how they will be detrimental to the public interest. Alternatives are important, but only as principles and as major objectives.

THE REPUBLICAN party in Congress will have numerous "task forces" to help it analyze current issues and prepare speeches of opposition, but this alone will not build the Republican party's chances for victory.

One of the chief weaknesses on the Republican side is in the field of communication. It has been very ineffective in presenting its point of view to the country, though, to be sure, much of the difficulty has been in the fact that the Republican party in Congress has not been articulate or able to concentrate on major points of opposition to the party in power.

The Republican party's job, therefore, lies not in worrying about the ideology of a party chairman, but what the Republicans in Congress are going to do to oppose unsound fiscal policies and waste of public funds as well as ill-conceived controls by the federal government of those services which should primarily be taken care of by the states.

In the long run, the differences between advocacy of centralization in the federal government and an insistence on the retention by state government of their responsibilities will become clearer and clearer. This could develop into a major issue in the congressional elections of 1966 as well as in the presidential election of 1968.

McNamara's Magic

By Laurence Barrett

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara goes to Congress soon for his fifth winter of advocating the administration's military budget and policies.

The short-term forecast is for blowy weather, as usual. But the long-range prediction, based on conversations with leading members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees, is for a mostly sunny climate for the cool defense secretary's formal program. Strategic considerations are something else again.

McNamara will probably have to suffer through stormy tirades against some of his plans—such as his proposal to reorganize and reduce Army and Air Force reserve forces—but in the end he is expected to prevail, as he has for the most part until now.

This year, however, the focus of conflict and debate is expected to shift somewhat. Much centered on particular weapons systems and technical programs: Manned bombers, naval nuclear propulsion, the skybolt missile, the TFX (F-111) fighter plane and others. Most of these issues are still alive, but not kicking so violently.

McNAMARA has proved his preeminence within the Pentagon. And, with consistent White House support, which seems to be increasing rather than diminishing, he has demonstrated relative invulnerability to Congress pressure, no matter how hard he steps on legislative toes in the continuing reorganization of the military establishment.

The new element this year will be a movement in interest from specific gadgets to the application of American military power. The fulcrum of this examination must be the war in South Viet Nam which, by common consent, is often called "McNamara's war."

The Senate Armed Services Committee, under the hard nosed, brilliant Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., is expected to conduct a most exacting inquiry into the handling of the war.

The fight goes badly. The counter-insurgency doctrine and forces developed during the last four years have proved insufficient to check the enemy. Although the entire administration is responsible, and although political factors are as much involved as military ones, McNamara is likely to bear the brunt of the argument from the administration side.

FOR THE REST, the McNamara winter on Capitol Hill is expected to be as familiar as a late, late movie on television.

There will be considerable loud discussion of his Reserve reorganization plan, much of it coming in hearings to be staged by a House Armed Services subcommittee headed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., an old McNamara dueling partner. The prospect is that the reorganization will go through in pretty much the form desired by McNamara. However, Congress may force him to protect the pension rights of Reservists with long service.

Fashion Flurry Begins

First Lady Chooses Red For Inauguration Dress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first fashion flurry of the inaugural begins this afternoon when 5,000 queue up in the National Gallery to meet Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey.

They announced in advance their gowns for the three-day inaugural celebration, a wide range from warm outdoor outfits to specially designed ball gowns.

They picked their favorite colors — Mrs. Johnson choosing bright shades of yellow, bright red and shimmering whites; and Mrs. Humphrey a patriotic wardrobe of red, white and blue.

Hats were considered optional by Perle Mesta, who issued a "what to wear" manual as "social consultant to the inaugural committee chairman."

Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Humphrey planned to wear hats only to the outdoor oath-taking and inaugural parade. They were careful to see their clothes went well together, since they were making joint appearances almost everywhere.

For the late afternoon Distinguished Ladies Reception in the gallery today, dark-haired Mrs. Johnson picked a princess-line holiday-red silk afternoon dress with three-quarter sleeves and gently flared skirt. Silver-haired Mrs. Humphrey's outfit was a sleeveless silver and white brocade, with matching jacket.

For tonight's first evening appearance — the Inaugural Gala, a galaxy of entertainment in honor of the President — Mrs. Johnson's gown by Roxanne of Samuel Winston, New York, will be a long sparkling white peau de soie, with bodice of crystal jewels, bugle beads and paillettes, with matching white stole. Mrs. Humphrey planned to make a last-minute choice between her two gowns for evening formal events. She was expected to wear an empire-style red satin gown with a bateau neckline.

The First Lady has picked an American beauty red costume for the Capitol ceremony where President Johnson will be sworn in at noon Wednesday. Designed by Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue, New York, it includes a single-breasted coat of needle-point wool, with a small face-framing collar and tiny black sealskin bow at the neck, over a matching slim-skirted sheer wool dress. The hat, by Adolfo of New York, is American beauty red velours off-the-face, with a black velvet band.

Mrs. Humphrey wanted to make the most of her inaugural wardrobe, but didn't have the time and had to leave it to dressmakers. However, she did make her own inaugural day outfit — a dress of pale cerulean angora and wool broadcloth, semifitted, with simulated slit seaming along the bodice and front of the skirt, giving an empire line.

Over the dress, she'll wear an Alaskan seal coat with sable collar, which she purchased in Anchorage, while on a campaign trip last October. She's been saving it to wear for the first time officially at the ceremony. A black sable hat goes with it.

The main fashion event, of course, is the inaugural ball on Wednesday night, and top-ranking Washington wives have put the emphasis on their ball gowns.

Leading the way will be Mrs. Johnson with a classic long coat and gown ensemble of heavy double-woven jonquil yellow satin, designed by young New York designer John Moore, an Oklahoman who claims Texas as his home state. The gown has a bateau neckline, small wing-capped sleeves. A bias front panel set into the bodice features a slightly raised waistline tapering to a natural waistline in the back, with slight fullness flowing in the skirt.

The matching coat is fully-gored and falls from narrow shoulders to a wider hem. It features a face-framing, stand-up collar with elbow length sleeves circled in natural sables.

With it, Mrs. Johnson will wear a single strand of pearls and the diamond and gold earrings given her by the President on their 30th wedding anniversary last Nov. 17. Yellow satin medium-heel pumps, white gloves and an envelope handbag of the dress fabric complete the costume.

Mrs. Humphrey's gown, designed by Count Sarmi of New York, is of frailest sheer ribbon lace in wisteria tones, worn with a matching collarless full-length coat. The dress has a V-necked bodice, with bow accentuating the empire waistline. The skirt is gently shaped with a scalloped hemline and varied blue and lavender tones give a flowing, water color effect.

Fund Drives
To Help 16 In Rights Case

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—Appeals for cash went out today as 16 men awaited arraignment in Mississippi's case of the three murdered civil rights workers.
The FBI said two other men would be arrested soon.
The two are Horace D. Barnette, 25, and James E. Jordan who used to live here but moved elsewhere after the killings.

Their present whereabouts was an FBI secret.
A federal grand jury in Jackson indicted 18 white men on charges of conspiracy in the case. Those arrested here and at nearby Philadelphia Saturday were freed on bond.
Legal strategy being planned included a move to have each man tried separately. A federal source said the move would be opposed.
No arraignment date was set.
At least two fund-raising groups were bidding for defense donations.

One — with a goal of $1 million — said collection boxes would be placed at every business establishment in the state and every public official would be tapped for contribution.
The 16 arrested included
Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey, 41, and Chief Deputy Cecil Price, 26, both of Philadelphia.
Price was among 10 men the FBI said actually plotted the Ku Klux Klan conspiracy to intercept, "shoot and kill" the three men near Philadelphia, some 40 miles northwest of here, last June 21.

Barnette and Jordan also were among the 10 men listed.
The FBI said both gave written eyewitness statements about the killings, which set off a massive FBI investigation.
The federal government has no authority to file murder charges in the case. There was no word on plans for state action. The Neshoba County grand jury, which would consider any state charges filed, meets next month.

Snow Blamed
In 3 Mishaps

Snow - slicked roads were blamed for three of four district traffic mishaps reported over the weekend by the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon.
William James Boyce, 25, of Massillon was injured early today when his 1964 sedan skid-ded into guardrails then into a ditch along Route 164 about a mile north of Lisbon.
Officers said Boyce lost control on the slippery pavement and the auto went off the right side, hit guardrails, then veered back across the road into a ditch. He received minor injuries, the patrol said.
Galen Froelich, 19, of Canton was cited for speeding Saturday after his car skidded on an icy section of Route 30 about four miles west of Lisbon and struck a utility pole, breaking it.
Donald John Purbough, 39, of Lordstown was charged with speeding and fictitious registration after his station wagon skid-ded into an embankment along Route 45 about three miles south of West Point Saturday night.
Kenneth Leroy Mackall, 25, of Rogers R. D. 1 was cited after a trailer came loose from his rig on Route 7 near Williamsport Sunday night at 9:12.
He was charged with operating an unsafe vehicle when the trailer broke away from the tractor while ascending a hill.

9 Are Feared Dead
As Gales Hit Britain

LONDON (AP) — At least nine persons were feared dead
today after the worst gales in 10 years battered the British Isles and the Bay of Biscay.
Four hunters were missing in the Lancashire marshes; police found the body of a fifth. Two fishermen drowned in Dover harbor and two others were killed in a highway accident.
Weathermen said gales up to 100 miles an hour lashed the English Channel. The storm also brought rain, snow and sleet.

His father's '65 Fordrides quieter than his father's Rolls-Royce

We know it's hard to believe a Ford could ride quieter than the famed Rolls-Royce. But it's a fact. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which three V-8 powered Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, new Galaxie 500 /XL and LTD Hardtops) with automatic transmissions rode quieter than a new Rolls-Royce. The tests were certified by the U.S. Auto Club. Of course, the best test of all is to get behind the wheel yourself . . . and listen to a '65 Ford in action.

That's what Chuck's father did. Ford's quietness really impressed him. But it wasn't the quietness alone that sold him.
He shopped around and found that Ford offers features and models and quality that simply aren't matched by other cars in its class. For example:

- 100% new body—strongest Ford body ever.
- New frame "tunes out" vibration.
- Decorator-appointed interiors in LTD's, thick nylon carpeting.
- More luggage space than in most competing cars—trunk holds four 2-suiters standing upright with room left over.

- Thrifty, quiet new Big Six—the biggest Six offered by any car in Ford's class . . . 289-cu. in. V-8 in XL's and LTD's.
- All automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars—smoother shifting, more economy.
- Silent-Flo ventilation (in 4-door hardtops) provides fresh air in car with all windows shut.
- Handy reversible key works either side up.

There's more . . . much more in a Ford than you'd expect for the money. Visit your Ford Dealer and take a test drive soon.

6 More Cited For Hancock Bar Violations

Six more persons were cited in weekend raids on Hancock County night spots by deputy sheriff's while several others, arrested in earlier raids, forfeited bonds when they failed to appear for hearings this morning before Squire John D. Herron at New Cumberland.

Two Weirton establishments and another near New Cumberland were the latest hit by officers of Sheriff Joseph Rodak, who promised a crackdown on illegal activities when he assumed office over two weeks ago.

The Sports Lounge on Main St., Weirton, was raided Saturday afternoon at 2. Al Magrini, Elizabeth Simbanin and Eleanor Alice Rutkowski all were cited on charges of operating a lottery.

Each posted a $257 bond for appearance next Monday morning before Herron. Deputies said they found numbers, sports pools and punch boards in the club. They entered with a search and seizure warrant.

Johnny's Bar on Route 2 near New Cumberland was hit Saturday night at 11:30. Mike Ronchar of Weirton posted a $273 bond for appearance Tuesday at 10 a. m. on charges of possession of alcoholic liquor, sale of alcoholic liquor and possession of a punch board. Deputies also used a search and seizure warrant in making the arrest at Johnny's.

Two were arrested when Ramy's Restaurant on Virginia Ave., Weirton, was raided at 3 a. m. today.

Arrested on sight violations were Raymond Gaffer, possession of alcoholic liquor, and Alma Anderson, sale of alcoholic liquor.

Each posted a $164 bond for appearance Friday at 10 a. m. before Herron.

William Elmsy, 51, of the Redwood Lounge of Pennsylvania Ave., Weirton, forfeited bonds totaling $328 when he failed to appear this morning at 10 before Herron on charges of illegal sale and possession.

Also forfeiting bonds of $164 each were John Dawson of the Cover Club on Route 2, for illegal possession, and Dolores DeHaven of the Clover Club for illegal sale, and Gladys Rossi of the George's Lounge at Weirton, illegal possession.

morning in the Beaver Local School District, stalled in the Cannons Mills area, authorities said. Other bus drivers reported no difficulty on their routes, a spokesman added.

No unusual amount of absences were reported in Southern Local District, where only a few buses were late this morning.

The reading of minus 22 yesterday was the lowest in two years. It came unexpectedly and caught the district unprepared.

Edwin Copeland, U. S. weather observer at Millport, said the thermometer at his station actually was a shade below minus 22, almost equalling the reading of 23 below zero recorded there on Jan. 29, 1963.

The winter of 1963 saw the lowest readings in this area in several generations. The 23 below Jan. 29 was followed by another minus 23 on Feb. 26 and a minus 21 on Feb. 27 of that year.

The lowest subsequent readings were a minus 14 and a minus 16 recorded at Millport in January 1964.

The mercury plunged to an official minus 6 at 7 a. m. yesterday at Montgomery Dam in Ohio View. In downtown East Liverpool, it fell to minus 5, but there were much lower unofficial readings throughout the area, particularly in some of the suburbs.

Glenmoor had a minus 12 at 8 a. m. yesterday. A Chester resident reported 10 below and a W. 3rd St. resident noted a minus 16. In the rural regions near Chester, the mercury dipped as far as 20 below. A Rock Camp resident said his thermometer was hanging at 23 below at the same time.

Many Tri-State residents were too busy attempting to thaw frozen water pipes or start balky cars to watch the erratic course of the thermometer yesterday.

Tow trucks had a field day because many autos left outside all night in the numbing cold simply refused to turn over yesterday morning.

There were widespread reports of frozen water pipes and similar troubles. But the bitter cold was relieved at least to a degree by the fact the wind was still.

Although handicapped by the breakdown of the hopper truck, street crews continued to spread ashes today on city streets.

Safety - Service Director Robert E. Vodrey said mechanics were attempting to repair the hopper truck, which is usually kept loaded and the first vehicle to go out because it spreads ashes more efficiently.

Street crews worked until midnight Saturday, the director said.

They were called out at 10 p. m. yesterday and worked until about 1 a. m. and then recalled at 4:30 a. m., the director added.

More Snow And Ice Are Due Across Ohio

By The Associated Press

Ohioans got a brief respite today from frigid weekend cold, but more snow and icy temperatures are on the way.

Light snow fell over east-central counties of the state this morning adding another inch to the snow already on the ground. But as much as three to six inches were expected to fall in northeast Ohio near Lake Erie.

Temperatures were back to normal today, in the teens and low 20s, after Sunday's record low readings.

But the mercury was expected to tumble to near zero again tonight and the Weather Bureau said in its five-day outlook that temperatures will average about 10 degrees below normal.

Waynesburg, in southeast Stark County, reported a startling 26 degrees below zero Sunday morning. Columbus had a new record with minus 11, while Youngstown and Toledo showed minus 9; Cincinnati minus 8 and 'ansville, minus 4.

There were reports of school closings in many rural areas.

Cleveland reported light snow falling early today which was expected to add two or three inches to some seven inches already on the ground. Again, winds were causing heavy drifting.

Columbus also had light snow.

Cincinnati reported snow flurries and looked for another inch. The hilly, river city has been in a traffic tangle since Friday. Many schools in the area were closed.

Most roads in the state were open again, but were slippery and snowy.

Highway crews said the below-zero cold made chemicals and salt useless. Crews expected to make good headway today, however.

The storm and cold had one welcome side effect. Weekend traffic fatalities, usually high, took only one life.

But six persons died shoveling snow, two transients froze to death, and two little girls drowned in an icy lake.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Crane —

Dear Heloise: Just one more plug for your nylon net:

My son must wear white shirts to business. Some of the collars had lines that were getting quite brown.

One day, I wrapped a personal-size cake of bar soap in some of your famous net, dampened it, rubbed it along the lines on the collars, washed the shirts, and, lo and behold, the collars came out white.

I now soap each collar band well with a bar of soap wrapped in my piece of nylon net, and the shirts looked as good as new! Thank you for the net; I don't know how I got along so many years without it.

SEVENTY-TWO.

Don't thank me! It was a woman in Hawaii who introduced us to the fabric. I shall bless her always.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Have you ever had a pan of food cooking and found the steam escaping and your stove in a mess?

Try putting a toothpick between the lid and the pan and this will let the steam out a little at a time, thus no messy stove to clean.

CASS.

And, dear Cass, why didn't you write this before? I have tried setting the lids on my pans a little to the side, sticking a fork in (and the darned handle always gets so hot you can't touch it later), and just about every other way.

You are a doll. On one pan I did find the toothpick dropped in my kettle. But you know what I did? I just picked it out. It's easy to see. You are an angel and do write again.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Here is a way to save when making stuffed animals for children.

These toys can be made with old Turkish towels. If you aren't handy with a pencil, any dime store has coloring books.

Find a book with large pictures of animals and just trace the outline. Cut two of these patterns from toweling and blanket-stitch the edges together. If you use old nylon stockings for the stuffing, the toys can be put in the washing machine.

These stuffed animals make wonderful crib toys, playpen and bathrubb toys. No buttons for eyes, please, just a French knot will do.

NANNY.

LETTER OF THOUGHT
DEAR HELOISE: From one mother to all others:

Please form the habit of closing every safety pin regardless of where you find it. Nine out of ten babies who swallow an open safety pin may die, and nine out of ten who swallowed a closed one might live.

MRS. M. LEIDY.

DEAR HELOISE: The rubber gasket on self-sealing refrigerators and freezers must sometimes be replaced when your unit is still practically new—so we have found out.

I learned that after you clean the unit if you use some liquid wax on the door where the rubber gasket is, the rubber lasts much longer!

JOSEPHINE PATCOFF.

Thanks a million, Josephine. But watch the type of wax you use, girls.

Some self-cleaning waxes contain cleaners that are not compatible with rubber. Paste wax is wonderful. After trying this for six months and after checking with my chemist, he says that paste wax (the type which DOES NOT say "cleans as it waxes") is the answer.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: If mothers with small children save the plastic containers in which tomatoes are sold, they will find that the children love them to play train.

These little plastic containers can be tied together with string and loaded with freight.

After the children tire of this, they can build other things with the containers simply by untying and tying with more string.

Mother can disassemble the toys at the end of play time and pack the little containers away neatly, ready for the next play session.

Clear Approach For Mail Boxes, Brown Requests

With Old Man Winter arriving at last, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown today appealed to residents, particularly those on three rural routes, to help carriers make mail deliveries.

The three rural routes cover over 100 miles in areas of Glenmoor, Calcutta, Fredericktown, Routes 7, 30, 170, 267 and many county roads.

Brown said approaches to rural mail boxes must be kept open by the customer, pointing out in bad weather approaches sometimes are blocked by parked autos.

When rural boxes pose problems, the carrier may leave a notice warning the mail box needs attention. Unless approaches are cleared, it may be necessary to withhold delivery temporarily, the postmaster continued.

Rural carriers are not required to perform service on foot when roads cannot be traveled with vehicles normally used, but they are expected to make reasonable efforts to serve as many patrons as possible without physical exertion or added financial cost, Brown said.

Bill Drafters Busy In Ohio

Urbanization Programs To Be Pushed By League

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Taking advantage of the Ohio General Assembly's two-week recess, bill drafters here are polishing up the proposals which are expected to keep the lawmakers busy for another four months or more.

Ranking high among them in statewide interest will be the bills growing out of a far-reaching legislative policy package adopted by the Ohio Municipal League.

Legislation dealing with municipalities always commands considerable attention in the Assembly and it looks as if this year will be no exception.

Dozen Points in Program

The league is pushing a program covering nearly a dozen subjects. John Coleman, league director, says he expects bills to be introduced on all of them but concedes some may fall by the wayside because of their controversial nature.

Whatever the outcome, the points raised by the league serve as a reminder that rapid urbanization is one of Ohio's big continuing problems.

High on the league's list are proposals to swell municipal street maintenance funds and to pave the way for easier annexation.

The league contends cities are in a financial bind because of the miles of new expressways and interstate systems which have been opened within their boundaries. Cities are charged with maintaining these highways along with their street systems.

Coleman and the league's legislative policy makers point out that vehicular travel on municipal streets alone is nearly double the travel on all other local road systems. But only 32 per cent of the highway use money refunded to governmental subdivisions goes to municipalities.

Recommendations Made

To remedy the maintenance fund shortage, the league will ask the Legislature to:

REVISE the formula for distributing license fees and gasoline taxes to give municipalities a bigger share.

ADD $5 to the cost of license plates and refund the increase to municipalities.

REQUIRE the state to assume all costs of maintaining interstate and limited-access highways within municipalities, including the cost of lighting.

REDUCE the municipal share of the cost of interstate highway construction.

REQUIRE greater state participation in maintaining other state highways inside municipal boundaries.

"In the final analysis," says Coleman, "the outcome of the street fund proposals may rest with the governor. There is a question of whether he will go along."

Another major problem that has been tackled with limited success in the past involves annexation and incorporation. The league's goal is to make annexation easier, incorporation tougher.

Coleman says one of the most controversial proposals in this field would permit a city to annex land it owns but which is not contiguous.

Some cities are anxious to have this authority to insure proper development and servicing of potential industrial sites.

Proposals Listed

Other annexation proposals would:

PERMIT annexation by a vote of only the electors in the area to be annexed instead of the entire unincorporated portion of the township when annexation is initiated by a city council.

BYPASS the county commissioners when property to be annexed is used primarily for agriculture and has no resident owners.

PROVIDE definite annexation standards which, when met, would require approval by the commissioners.

ESTABLISH a definite time period for disposition of annexation cases, eliminate posting of notices, reduce advertising requirements and allow petitions to be submitted at any session of the commissioners.

PERMIT persons owning property adjacent to a proposed annexation to join in the petition, eliminating the need for separate petitions.

ALLOW both resident and nonresident property owners to petition for annexation.

REQUIRE the county engineer to certify to the commissioners the accuracy of the description and map of the area to be annexed and make this approval final.

Two years ago the legislature passed a Municipal League bill to make it more difficult for areas to incorporate within three miles of a city.

This year the league wants the legislature to go further, setting specific incorporation standards at least as restrictive as those applying to annexation.

The aim is to block hasty, ill-advised incorporations which the league says "may only result in multiplying the problems of local government."

Another highly controversial recommendation of the league is to repeal the judicially imposed pre-emption doctrine which bars cities and villages from levying taxes already claimed by the state.

For example, it would permit a municipality to levy a local sales tax even though the state collects a 3 per cent sales tax.

In other areas, the league will ask the state to increase from $24 million to $30 million the annual share of sales tax revenue allocated to local government funds.

Motorist Given Jail Term For False License Form

An East End motorist was sentenced to 15 days in the County Jail today by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff for driving his car on a fictitious application for a duplicate driver's license.

Japhros A. Clapp, 49, of 515 Virginia Ave. also was fined $25 and costs for speed in excess of road conditions.

Clapp was cited Friday afternoon by Patrolman S. E. Hayes on the speeding charge after a collision at the intersection of Harvey Ave. and Putnam St.

He had pleaded innocent to the speeding charge, but guilty to the other charge alleging he "unlawfully possessed a driver's license knowing it was fictitious and altered."

Clapp told the court he had lost his license, but Judge Chertoff later determined Clapp's license had been suspended in 1963 for six months for driving while intoxicated.

Officer Hayes said Clapp had obtained a duplicate application in East Liverpool dated in June 1963, but had altered the date to show November 1964. Duplicate applications are permissible as licenses for 60 days, he told the court.

Francis Beaver, 838 Oak St., and John Frank Young of Negley R. D. 1 were fined $10 and costs each on speeding charges.

Smith

Smith said that in "the pursuit of excellence" his administration would "explore all means to attract new industry and to encourage our existing industries to expand" and would seek to "develop our tourist potential into a major industry for this state."

He continued: "This new spirit of excellence will thrive only if there is an open-door policy between the state government and the people. I believe that the government is an informed public."

"And this new spirit must be compassionate... compassionate for those who are in need in this state."

"Together, then, we can build a state where self-reliant and intelligent citizens, united in progressive communities and rising above the petty prejudices of color, religion and race, will create a society where decency and dignity will prevail."

Smith praised outgoing Democratic Gov. W. W. Barron as one who left "a solid foundation upon which to build."

"We are fortunate that he has been a forward-looking chief executive, who possessed the vision to create programs of progress, and the courage to seek unconventional answers to unprecedented problems."

Officers Picked By Choral Group

Mrs. Martha Brooks was elected president at an organization meeting of the Choraleers, a group of tri-state singers, Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Hampton of Pennsylvania Ave.

Mrs. Brooks appointed Mrs. Bea Henderson, Mrs. Sara Johnson and Miss Brooks to the by-law committee, and Mrs. Exie Hampton, Mrs. Verna Myers and Mrs. Delores Taylor to the membership committee.

In addition to singing, the group's purpose will be the development of music appreciation by studies, attending concerts and other musical events and sponsoring local musical activities.

The next meeting will be Jan. 29 at the Hampton residence.

Swine Sales Set By Pig Feed Unit

LISBON — Swine sales have been set for April 23, June 25, Sept. 24 and Nov. 5 by the Damascus Feed & Pig Improvement Committee.

Plans for the first sale will be made at a meet early in February at the Damascus Auction Barn with C. C. Bowen, extension agent in livestock marketing, slated to discuss the feeder pig sale plans.

Over 20 attended a meeting Friday night at the barn, the first organizational session since the area pig sales were moved from Hartsville.

Discussion was held on rules for the sales, including changes such as payment of veterinarian costs or cholera treatment by the buyer rather than the consignor.

Commission charges and consignment fees will remain the same as last year.

Violent Reaction Due In Premier's Slaying

BUKAVU, the Congo, (AP)—Violent reactions were feared today from followers of assassinated Premier Pierre Ngendandumwe of Burundi.

Reports reaching this eastern Congo border town said the premier was shot with an automatic rifle last Friday after coming from a hospital where his wife had just given birth to a son.

Ngendandumwe was named premier by King Mwambutsa IV only eight days before. He was a member of the Hutu tribe, many of whose leaders have been educated in Western universities. They oppose the Tutsi tribes, whose leaders are said to support the Red Chinese.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a sophomore at the state university and psychology is my major. I've been reading your column for eight years and you are like a second mother to me. I know you won't let me down.

I'm doing a term paper on modern marriage. There is a lot of material available on the subject but what I need is current, up-to-date stuff. Most of all, I need inside dope from someone who really knows what's going on and who is better qualified to help me than YOU, Ann Landers, the supreme authority — the person who hears from everybody?

All I need is about 800 words, describing the critical marital problems of our times, the causes and the cures. Also a brief paragraph on why there is a declining respect for marriage in our society.

Save my life and jot this down for me will you? Thanks, Doll. —BENNIE.

Dear Bennie: You just want me to jot down 800 words on the problems of marriage — the cause and the cure. Thanks a heap.

Look, Lamb Chop, every year about this time I get dozens of letters from wisecrackers who want me to do their work. The library on your campus has loads of information and it's plenty current, so get moving — YOUR SECOND MOTHER.

Ann Pleads Guilty

Dear Ann: Usually I agree with you, but I think you were dead wrong when you lambasted "Aunt Lucille" because she didn't feed her little nephew when he asked for something to eat.

The mother who complained said she and her family were driving by Aunt Lucille's house and she waved for them to stop. From her letter I didn't get the impression that Aunt Lucille signaled them to stop and eat.

Well, I'm with Aunt Lucille. I don't believe children should ask for food when they are guests, and I think you should have congratulated her for refusing to knuckle under. One little girl who comes here with her mother drives me nuts whining and begging for candy or cookies. Finally, after being asked for the fifth time, "Why don't you give me something to eat?" I replied, "Because I don't have anything to give you. You'll just have to starve."

I have a 4-year-old child of my own and he's no angel. When he starts whining for things, whether at home or in company, he gets a swat in the rear, then and there. It's unpleasant but it's better than embarrassing the hostess.

Thanks for listening, Ann. I feel 2 degrees cooler already. And I hope you will reconsider. —DEFENSE FOR AUNT LUCILLE.

Dear Defense: Thank you for presenting the case. Aunt Lucille isn't on trial, however, I am, and I plead guilty, as charged.

Hundreds of readers wrote to tell me I was wrong—that well-mannered children do not ask for food when they are visiting because it might be embarrassing to the hostess who has nothing to give them. So thank you all who wrote to protest. I was wrong.

Helpful Hitchhiker

Dear Ann: My husband passed away several months ago. He drove a new car every year and took great pride in his automobiles. I don't drive.

A neighbor told me it is bad for a car to sit idle and that he would keep the car in shape for me by driving it three or four times a week.

Now he takes the car to work every day and uses it as if it were his. When he puts gas in it he charges it at the station just as my husband did, and I have been paying the bills. Also he keeps telling me he is doing me a favor.

Is he right? Any advice? —E. D.

Dear E. D.: Learn to drive, or sell the car. Your arrangement with this free loader makes no sense.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

2 Shipping Mishaps Occur In Thick Fog

Thick fog contributed to two shipping mishaps in the Pacific Northwest over the weekend.

At Vancouver, B.C., the USS Whitehurst, a destroyer-escort, and the Norwegian freighter Hoyanger collided in the city's harbor Saturday.

The Whitehurst received a five-foot gash, but no injuries were reported on either vessel. Minor damage was inflicted on the $4,477-ton freighter.

The destroyer-escort was manned by reserve "weekend sailors."

Near Astoria, Ore., the freighter Seamar struck a pier in the Columbia river Saturday night. There were no injuries. A hole was opened in her side, and the vessel, owned by Bethlehem Steel Corp., was towed into drydock at Portland.

Indians Will Dance Without Arrowheads

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Four New Mexico Indian dancers will appear in the inauguration parade in Washington Wednesday, but without their arrowheads.

The Cochiti tribe dancers were questioned by the Secret Service, which is in charge of presidential security, about the type of arrowheads they would carry and the strength of their bows.

Joe Herrera, sponsor of the dancers, said the arrowheads were steel and volunteered to remove them for the parade.

Girl Scout Delegates Due At Area Meeting

Mrs. Ethel Clark and Mrs. Audrey Stevens will be delegates from Wellsville Girl Scout District at the annual Upper Ohio Valley Council meeting Tuesday night at the Glendale Methodist Church, near Moundsville.

Alternates are Mrs. Betty Mick and Mrs. Harriet Lanam. The board member is Mrs. Zella Quince. The meeting is open to other adults in the Girl Scout movement.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

You May Like The Eat-More-Often Plan

Two things we continue to search for, the fountain of youth and a magic reducing diet. An effective reducing plan is to eat six times a day.

How about this revolutionary diet, and where-in lies the magic?

The eat-more-often plan is effective, provided total calories are within your reducing quota. The objective is to avoid a major overload at any one time. Until recently not much has been known about how the rate of calorie ingestion can alter the way foodstuffs are metabolized.

RESEARCH provides convincing evidence that our modern way of snatching breakfast, going light at lunch and saving the big meal for the end of the day leads to a higher proportion of fat in the tissues.

Dr. Clarence Cohn of Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago conducted the initial research on nibbling versus big-meal eating in experimental animals. In repeated tests, using two groups of little white rats, it was found that those given their daily quota in two large loads deposited more fat and retained less protein than the nibbling group.

What about weight? As long as the same quantity of food was consumed, the calories were equal and the weights of the two groups were identical. While the meal-eating group weighed no more, they were fatter. That is, the new tissue added was fat. The other group the nibblers, on the same diet mixture, eating ad libitum a comparable amount of food, built lean bodies. Of the greatest significance was the fact that the serum cholesterol levels of the big-meal eaters was double that of the nibblers.

In other experiments, the quantity of food was not rationed. When the meal-eating groups learned it was now or never to get their rations, they gobbled up all the food in sight and ate a greater quantity of food than did the nibbling group. Result: The "gobblers" weighed 30 per cent more than the nibblers and had far more fat in their tissues.

WHAT CAN we learn from these experiments? Primarily, that overeating at one big meal overwhelms the body with excess food, and consequently more fat is laid down in the tissues. The overload is an obligatory pathway to fat. If the grand total of calories for the day is not in excess of your requirements, you cannot weigh more by the scales — but more of your weight will be in body fat.

The current research on calorie timing is exciting, for it points the way by which we can build healthy leanness. Eat three small meals a day and have a protein pick-up mid-morning, late afternoon and mid-evening.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Lansing Gives All To Air Force Role

How far should an actor go to give reality to the character he plays? The late John Barrymore drank hard liquor in every bar scene of his last play, "My Dear Children," but friends attributed this to John's liking of the sauce rather than a bid for reality.

Hal Humphrey
Raymond Massey used to portray Abe Lincoln so regularly and thoroughly that it was said he wouldn't be truly happy until he was actually shot in a theater box. Since he took over the Dr. Gillespie role in "Kildare," however, no one has caught Massey prowling hospital corridors in his off hours.

AN ACTOR who does believe in burying himself in the character is Robert Lansing, who by now may be better known as the grim, rugged Brig. Gen. Frank Savage in ABC-TV's air war saga, "12 O'Clock High."

The minute that Lansing got word the series was sold he signed up for flying lessons. In addition to logging as many air hours a month as possible, Lansing put in another three to four hours with his personal psychiatrist to study how an Air Force general reacts to the stress and strain of sending his men into combat.

"Look, if I'm in a scene calling for me to leave the house with a suitcase because I'm going on a trip, isn't it better to have the suitcase packed?" asks Lansing in an effort to explain his point.

"Otherwise, I have to act like the suitcase is heavy and at the same time try to concentrate on saying goodbye to my wife."

BESIDES the flying lessons and psychiatrist sessions, Lansing read the history of the 8th Air Force and even read the old novel, "Wings," the John Monk Saunders epic inspiring the silent movie in which those gay cavaliers, Gary Cooper and Richard Arlen, went dog fighting through the sky with silk kerchiefs trailing behind their goggled heads. Bottoms up!

Lansing wanted to meet Frank Armstrong, ex-commander of the 8th Air Force's first daylight bombing missions over Germany and the man after whom Savage is patterned.

But Lansing was dissuaded from making the trip to Florida, where Armstrong lives today. The "12 O'Clock High" producer was afraid the real general might not fit in with Lansing's mental picture of his hero.

WITH NEW WRITERS and directors assigned to nearly every episode, Lansing isn't kidding himself that his own exhaustive study of Gen. Savage is going to save the series from the "B" movie quality inherent in most weekly hour-long TV shows.

"I just can't be happy unless I'm using as much of myself as I can use," he explains. "Also, I think the public is expert at evaluating people. The average guy may not spot things in a performance that a professional will, but he knows a lot instinctively."

Lansing believes that generally it is the actor who is the most conscientious worker on a TV sound stage, and there is considerable evidence to support his claim.

"It's the actor's face that's up there on that screen, so he has more at stake," contends Lansing. "But he always is considered as only subjective and not objective."

"NOT LONG AGO I saw an actor walk up to his director and producer in a studio commissary, and he was trying passionately to convince them a certain scene should be changed. But when he walked away, the producer said to the director, 'Have somebody write an angry scene for Sam in the next episode—he's great when he's angry.'"

"They hadn't heard a darned thing Sam had said, because he was an actor, and everybody knows it's foolish to listen to actors. They're just children or animals."

Bringing Up A Family

By DR. GARRY MYERS

Emotional Girl Has Weekly Nightmares

From Ohio comes this letter from the mother of a daughter, five years old, who has two brothers, one three years old, the other seven months.

Without a doubt she is emotionally upset and perhaps that is the root of her trouble. She is often hostile toward her three-year-old brother and other children. As a result not many children will play with her.

"She doesn't mind well. She also has many fears. At times her mind preys on something she is afraid of and she can then hardly sleep at night. About once a week she awakens after what must be a dreadful nightmare and acts convulsive and upset."

But she won't tell me about her feelings and dreams. At times she is very happy and pleasant. We wonder how she could be any different. Her happy times are not often enough."

MY REPLY in part. No doubt that little girl is very "Nervous" and often upset because she feels she does not get as much love and attention from you parents and other adults as the younger children do. Dad and you should cuddle her often if she likes it, and read frequently to her. You and he should do and make things with her. Often play with her, talk to her more, listen to what she wishes to say, explain things to her and answer kindly all her questions.

Plan to have her go to bed a little later than the other children, when she will receive the sole attention of you or Dad. See that the older brother does not mess up her things or impose on her. Enlist your relatives and friends to help you parents build up this child to feel more worthy.

Attract some children of her age to your home, one at a time at first, more later, when you can study her and help make her a better playmate.

THE FEARS and the worries she has by day in relation to other children, could cause her nightmares. Patiently, tenderly, do all you can to help prevent fears in her and overcome those she already has. Provide her with a calm, relaxed and cheerful family atmosphere where she hears quiet voices and is not overstimulated or excited. Limit her TV viewing. Forbid programs of violence. Keep the TV and radio silent most of the time.

Her attending a nursery school should prove helpful. The nursery department of a nearby Sunday school also might aid.

When she must be punished, assign her to sit unamused in a chair for 20 minutes as measured by the clock. Spank her only if she gets down before the time is up. Don't have the other children in the same room then. Limit her punishment to the few things she must not do in your presence. Don't punish her for such matters as thumb-sucking. Don't at this age punish her to make her do what you command her to do.

EXCEPT simple routines, don't even command her to do what you wish her to do. Request instead and let her choose. But when you must say "no" or "don't" say it just once and follow it with effective punishment if she does not then obey promptly.

Liberally approve her for her good ways. Show great appreciation of what she makes and does well. Celebrate successes with her. Have your physician check on her physical condition.

My bulletins, "Preventing and Reducing Jealousy," "Fears in Children," and "Stubbornness: Its Prevention and Correction," may be secured by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Cites Inner Potential

'Men Make Best Cooks,' Says Cincinnati Teacher

CINCINNATI (AP)—Men become the best cooks because "they have more of an inner potential for good cooking than women," says Walter R. Wasson, commercial foods teacher at a Cincinnati high school.

Wasson has been teaching boys and girls at Central High School how to become professional cooks for many years.

"Youngsters who leave here will make sure that the brown gravy you get in a hotel in San Francisco will taste the same as it does in New York," he said.

Wasson very quickly points out that "one of my former students is a $175-a-week chef in Detroit."

"A woman would make a poor chef," Wasson said. "Imagine a woman trying to cook for 2,500 people. It's hard work. A woman would get to a certain point and just start crying and run away, probably. That's why you don't see women chefs."

Wasson's classes cover American, French, German and Italian cooking over a four-year period. He got his own start as a butcher's helper at the famous Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, Colo.

He says girls are some of his best students because "they are

Services Set For Six Who Perish In Blaze

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Joann Parshall, 34, and five of her children who died in a fire Saturday will be buried at Collinsville near here Tuesday, after funeral services in Oxford.

The victims were the wife and children of Harold F. Parshall, 34, vice president of Radio Station WOXR in Oxford. They died when fire swept their home in snowbound Mixersville, Ind., a small community six miles southwest of Oxford.

A daughter, Debbie, 13, escaped the fire by climbing out onto a porch roof. Parshall and another son, Ronald, 11, were not home. They had spent Friday night in Oxford because of a snowstorm. Another son, Harold G., 16, was staying with his grandmother in Hamilton, Ohio.

The Parshalls were making plans to move to Hamilton.

The fire was believed started by an oil heater.

Cleveland Gets Fund To Aid Dropout Fight

CLEVELAND (AP)—A $429,000 grant has been awarded the Cleveland Board of Education through the Neighborhood Youth Corps to help in the battle against the high school dropout problem.

The grant, announced in Washington Sunday by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, will be used to provide part-time employment for 1,000 needy youngsters and hopefully will dissuade them from becoming dropouts.

Total cost of the program will be $585,000, with Cleveland require to supply the $95,000 needed after application of the federal grant.

Council Votes TV Cable Bill At Wellsville

Wellsville City Council, at a special meeting Saturday afternoon, overrode the veto of Mayor William Daugherty and passed legislation granting a franchise to Rego Industries of Hoboken, N. J., for a community television cable service.

The vote was 6-1, with Councilman Paul Todd dissenting. Todd compared the financial backing of Rego and the Neptune Broadcasting Co. of Steubenville, which also sought a franchise.

Todd contended Neptune was more solvent and also cited the fact the Steubenville firm intended to reimburse the city for the franchise as well as offering lower subscription rates for residents taking the service.

The franchise is for 20 years. Rego has not offered any remuneration to the city. Rego also has the franchise in East Liverpool.

The mayor vetoed the legislation at the regular meeting Jan. 5.

The annual reports of the fire and police departments will be heard at the regular meeting Tuesday night at 7:30.

Snow Cuts Down Weekend Traffic Toll Across Ohio

By The Associated Press

Ohio marked up one of its safest traffic periods in history over the weekend.

The Associated Press count of traffic dead from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday showed only one fatality.

Safety and Highway Patrol officials credited the weekend snowstorm with cutting the traffic flow, thus the low count.

The victim was 17-year-old Terrence Lee Chatterton of Utica, Licking County, killed when his car was struck by a train in Utica Saturday.

Two other persons lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents. Kenneth Van Horn, 15, East Liberty, died when gored by a bull Sunday near Bellefontaine. Cleveland policeman James J. Kennedy, 50, died in a fall down his basement steps Sunday.

Message From Africa

An emergency message was relayed almost halfway around the world by a shortwave radio amateur near Rock Camp Sunday afternoon. Larry Armstrong of Route 30 set up the telephone message between a man in Ethiopia and his mother in Milwaukee, Wis.

The man in Ethiopia wanted to make arrangements to return home as a result of an illness in the Milwaukee home. Armstrong, an employee of Titanium Metals of Toronto, heard the radio request from Africa and set up the telephone call to Milwaukee.

The man was thus able to talk via radio and telephone to his mother for the first time in a year.

Mind Over Matter?

Look At Temperature Often Makes Us Hot Or Cold

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Is the trusty thermometer the great national pamperer of our citizens?

If we avoided looking at it, would we be more comfortable? Do we need houses so hot in cold climate that we can hardly breathe? Do we need to feel uncomfortable in a climate that is hotter than we've known?

Or is it all a state of mind brought on by what we think a temperature is doing to us? If weather bureaus declined to give the temperature, would we have happier cities?

This is the time of year when people complain about the efficiency of their heating systems. City dwellers are banging on radiators, hoping to arouse apartment house superintendents, and hiking landlords to court.

A WOMAN who has been very temperature-conscious because she lived in a city where newspaper headlines screamed disaster when the temperature fell to 5 degrees, has now weathered several country winters sleeping in a bedroom without heat when the temperature outdoors has been 4 degrees or below.

At first, she slept downstairs where registers warmed the first floor. But going to her bedroom in summer, she found that she could weather fall. As it grew colder, she took each day in stride until pretty soon, like the little boy who lifted the calf each day until it weighed several hundred pounds, she got through the winter without complaining at all about the cold bedroom. Well, hardly at all.

Now she feels uncomfortable when she spends a night in the city. She is so hot, she can't sleep and almost always returns home feeling groggy.

THE UNHEATED bedroom she sleeps in is on the corner of a house with only two inner walls of the room insulated. A small heat register is in the upstairs hall. She feels drafts, and she has worn a stocking cap from time to time to keep icicles out of her hair, but she is healthier than she has ever been and hasn't had a cold in years, she says.

It is interesting to observe city people who move to the country. They are "freezing to death" the first winter. Their thermostats are up so high, visiting neighbors can't bear it. Just about the same friends are avoiding visits, the exurbanites decide to oblige by tolerating a cooler house.

At the end of the first winter, their houses are just as comfortable as their neighbors'. In no time at all they may tell you they have shut off radiators in their bedrooms.

The next step is that they become gleeful at low temperatures because now their interest in the thermometer is to see how rugged they are. They forget they're supposed to feel cold. It is amusing, too, that many people can be rugged outdoors but are hothouse flowers indoors.

Skiing on the windy Plains of Abraham at Quebec City some years ago at 26 degrees below, with breath forming ice patterns as you watched it, a man marveled at his wife. In her lightweight gabardine ski trousers and jacket, she was having a great time.

"At home she won't walk a block away to the grocery store if the temperature goes below 40 degrees, and she has the house up to 80 degrees," he observed. "She knows it's cold, but she doesn't know how cold," he said.

EVERYONE had been so intent on catching the ski bus from the Chateau Frontenac ski room that no one realized how cold it was until they checked the thermometer on their return. Noses, fingertips and toes were ready to drop off, but after hot soup and bath, everyone felt great.

The healthy Finns have the reverse therapy. First they steam their bodies until they're red hot, then they roll in the snow. The Sauna heat unit is popular here now, but there aren't many takers for snow baths.

Office workers blow hot and cold, too, with the thermometer, as one man points out. After being driven to distraction by complaints in a windowless city office in winter that they were "roasting," he removed the thermometer and hasn't had a complaint since.

Thermometers are wonderful fun for telling where you are, where you've been, and where you're going. But if one let's a thermometer decide how he feels temperature-wise, he'll feel pretty miserable from one end of the year to another.

Few people ever decide at what temperature they really feel good. When they have a great day, they always compliment the weather, never the thermometer.

If Your Oil Burner Stops, Here Are Tips To Follow

Don't panic if your oil burner fails to start one of these cold winter mornings. If you follow these tips from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau of Chicago, chances are you'll have the old "home fires" burning again in short order:

1.—Check the thermostat. The burner may not start unless the setting exceeds the room temperature by a few degrees.

2.—Check the main electric burner switch to make sure that it is in the "on" position.

3.—Examine electric fuses — replace any that are blown. Use 15 ampere fuses only.

4.—Check the fuel storage tank gauge. The burner may have shut down due to a lack of oil.

5.—If the boiler is equipped with a low water cut-out, be sure the water in the glass gauge is at the "water line"

(usually located about halfway up the glass).

6.—Check the pressure gauge or thermometer. If pressure or temperature is high, the limit control may have stopped the burner. In such cases, the burner will restart automatically as soon as the pressure or temperature drops.

If the burner still refuses to start, press or turn the manual re-set button on the burner control box. If the burner runs for only a minute or two and shuts down again, do not press the re-set button again. Turn off the burner's main electric switch and call a qualified heating contractor for service.

Certain Types Of Homes Are Easily 'Modernized'

Although it is possible to enlarge most homes, certain designs lend themselves especially well to modernization.

Three such styles are the rambler, the split-level, and the two-story, all popular homes today.

For those who now own one of these designs and find themselves out-grown what originally seemed a spacious home, it's reassuring to know that the addition of extra rooms to their home is relatively simple.

The rambler style house is one of the easiest and least expensive houses to remodel.

Chances are that the owners of a soundly constructed rambler house can add a room to provide desirable living space and increase the value of their property by as much as, or more than, the cost of the remodeling project involved.

THE DESIGN of the typical rambler home provides flexibility in floor plan and the simplicity of its rectangular shape permits a variety of exterior alterations.

For instance, the rectangle can easily become an L-shape with the addition of a room to the back or front of the house. Or the rectangle can be retained by adding space to one end of the house.

The structural shell of the one-story rambler involves relatively simple carpentry and alterations can be accomplished with equally straight-forward and inexpensive building methods.

Split-level homes present a few more problems than the rambler or bungalow style residence in remodeling but the possibilities of adding space are just as great, and the design potential may be even greater.

A good rule to follow is to keep the addition at grade level for an obvious reason: it costs less to build on the ground than it does to build on a platform.

However, if a post-supported second level room is added, there is the possibility of creating a carport and sheltered patio under it.

If all three are desirable, then it would be best to build high instead of low.

THE SPLIT-LEVEL can take a 16-by-20 room addition very well, providing it is carefully thought out.

The first consideration should be traffic patterns in your home. A split-level house usually has a more sophisticated traffic flow than other homes, and care should be taken to maintain the traffic pattern.

Whatever you do, plan carefully to get the most room for your budget, selecting building ideas that keep costs of the structural shell as low as possible.

Two-story homes can often benefit from added space, too. Usually a new room in a two-story house is intended to function as a family room, or as a master bedroom that will free an upstairs bedroom for use as a playroom or recreation area for children.

The two-story home has some built-in structural advantages but can pose some knotty design problems. Structurally, the two-story house can take a new room with a minimum of complicated carpentry.

Whatever style of home you have, the advice and assistance of a qualified home modernizer is invaluable.

Many modernizers offer design assistance as part of their service and some of them have licensed staff architects or experienced designers on their staff.

Dishwasher Advantages Are Outlined

"By the time I scrape, pre-rinse and stack the dishes in an automatic dishwasher, it could do the whole thing by hand."

Wrong. Granted, there was a time when automatic dishwashers demanded more preparation of dishes prior to washing, but even that's been eliminated now.

A recent survey showed that this modern kitchen servant saves the homemaker an average of one to two hours every day. And it does far more than just save time. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau of Chicago reports the following advantages:

1.—Hygienically clean dishes washed in super-heated (140-180 degree) water for maximum health protection.

2.—Larger-than-ever capacity to handle all utensils and a complete dinner service for as many as 12 or 14 persons.

3.—Cabinets that roll out for easy and safe loading of even the most delicate china and glassware.

4.—Multi-cycle action that washes away every type of food soil — from film on glasses to drippings baked on broiler racks.

One of the features about automatic dishwashers that especially appeals to homemakers is the fact that when the dishes are removed the tub itself is completely and hygienically clean. All traces of food particles, even of the detergents, are gone.

South Surprises Potters, 64-63; Local Streak Ends At 6

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Apparently suffering a slight letdown following a key victory over Steubenville Big Red, East Liverpool let a 9-point halftime lead slip from its hands and suffered a surprising 64-63 defeat at the hands of Youngstown South Saturday night.

The partisan crowd of some 950 which turned out at Memorial Auditorium saw the Potters' winning streak stopped at six games. The victory string was one of the longest in several years by a Potter team.

South was a mediocre club, but one that didn't give up and was able to turn in a good third quarter then overtake the Potters in the closing minutes of the contest.

The victory gives Coach Pete Popovich's team a 4-4 record, while the Potters dropped their fourth game after having reeled off six triumphs.

A technical foul against East Liverpool with 25 seconds remaining in the game didn't help things. The technical was called on sophomore Vern Smith after he had fouled a South player. Smith protested and bumped the official, William (Butch) Vinovich, who called the technical.

South was leading at the time, 63-61. Larry Wright made the technical foul for a 64-61 lead. Bob Maltarich scored a field goal with 7 seconds to go to make it 64-63, but the Potters were still a point short.

Coach Frank Chan pointed to his team's poor shooting, especially in the third quarter when South outscored the Potters, 20-12. This cut a 9-point halftime margin to one point as the Blue and White took a 48-47 edge into the final eight minutes.

The Potters seemed as if they couldn't get started Saturday, showing only a few brief spurts of what they were the night before against Big Red.

East Liverpool jumped in front, 15-9, at the first quarter mark and, with Smith and Joe Massey scoring six points each in the second period, rose to what appeared to be a comfortable 36-27 margin at halftime.

The Potters turned cold in the third period, however, as Tom Smith, Jim Young and Wright dropped in three field goals each to lead South's comeback that whittled the lead to one.

The fourth quarter saw the score change hands on 10 different occasions.

Substitute Ron Kinsey put the Potters in front for the last time. He dropped in his second long push shot of the quarter for a 58-58 edge, but Wright followed with a 3-point play as South took the lead for good 61-59 with 2:18 remaining in the contest.

Willie Brown, a 6-5 cager, who scored three important goals in the final quarter, scored a two-pointer with 48 seconds to go for a 63-59 lead, but Smith fired in a long one-hander to cut the lead to 63-61 with 38 seconds to go. The technical foul followed to end South's scoring.

The Potters didn't turn out a key scorer Saturday, but four cagers finished in the double figures. Maltarich and Smith came up with 11 each, while Frank Taylor and Terry Lawrence dropped in 10 points apiece. Ben Springer and Taylor took rebounding honors for the Blue and White, pulling down 17 and 15 respectively.

Tom Smith, a 6-4 forward, scored consistently throughout the contest to spark South's attack and wind up with 26 points. He dropped in 11 fielders and 4 of 6 fouls.

The Potters finished with a 32 per cent mark from the field on 27 of 83, while Youngstown made 25 of 68 for 36 per cent.

Chan will now prepare the Potters for the invasion of Steubenville Central Friday before sending his team against No. 1 Canton McKinley next Saturday at the Canton Fieldhouse.

In a wild and wooley contest marked by a scuffle in the fourth quarter, Oak Glen nipped its backyard rival Wellsville, 70-66, Saturday night at Wellsville's Beacom Memorial Gym.

Oak Glen got off to a good start on the way to its fifth victory in 9 starts while Coach McDevitt's Tigers came back strong in the final period before dropping their seventh game of the season as against only one victory.

WELLSVILLE trailed by 18 points in the fourth period but outscored Oak Glen, 28-17, in the final period only to have the rally fall short.

A battle for a loose ball caused a brief scuffle between Wellsville's Dick Bratt and Oak Glen's Tom Thayer with the officials only ejecting Bratt from the game. The incident occurred early in the fourth period. Thayer later fouled out of the contest. Several technical fouls also marked action in the final 8 minutes.

THAYER scored 9 points to pace Oak Glen to a 20-12 first period halftime lead. Coach Bob Starkey's team owned a 35-29 half-time lead then went out in front by 15 markers, 53-38, at the end of three periods.

Harry Thornton scored 10 points and brother Chris tallied 5 markers to spark Wellsville's fourth quarter uprising.

THAYER wound up taking game honors with 18 points while consistent Dave Wagner added 14 and John Brand and Dennis Carnes finished with 13 each.

Harry Thornton paced Wellsville with 14 with Dick Murray contributing 12 and Pat Welch 11.

Bob Morehead tossed in 15 points to lead Wellsville's reserve team to a 46-37 victory in the preliminary contest.

Beavers Notch Fifth

In a nip and tuck affair, Beaver Local gained a late lead then staved off a bid by Jefferson Union to come out on top in a 56-55 victory Saturday on the JU court.

A balanced attack, which showed 4 starters hitting in the double figures, earned the Beavers their latest victory which gives them a 5-4 record at the halfway point of the season.

JU TOOK A 19-14 lead at the end of the first period but the Beavers bounced back to nail a 32-28 edge at halftime. Beaver Local fell behind again in the third quarter but bounced back in time to take a 43-39 margin when the period ended.

The Beavers led throughout the fourth quarter as JU came on strong at the end.

GUARD Dennis Horger dropped in 17 points to lead the attack for Coach John Pape's five while Norman Gaydos added 15

Dick Rudibaugh 14 and Don Goodman 10. Besides scoring well, Rudibaugh grabbed 14 rebounds for the Beavers.

Ellis Gains Comeback Victory Over Casper

By BOB MYERS

Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) —

The San Diego Open Golf Tournament ended in the excitement of a sudden-death playoff, a remarkable rally, victory for the underdog, Wes Ellis Jr., and a touching off-scene reaction by the most ardent admirer of the loser, Bill Casper Jr.

Ellis capped a dramatic comeback when he sank an eight-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the 73rd hole while Casper got down in par.

The 32-year-old Ellis, who doesn't play many tournaments

away from his position as a club

professional in West Caldwell,

N.J., sent the affair into the extra hole when he made a sensational putt on the 72nd hole.

He knocked the ball in from the edge of the green, 45 feet away.

Shouts from the gallery shook the place.

But a small boy, standing in the crowd, cried.

His name? Billy Casper III,

age 8. He had trotted as close to his daddy's heels as he could all day.

The round turned into a threeway struggle in the final nine holes among Casper, Ellis and Johnny Pott, who lost in a playoff to Tommy Jacobs in 1962, missed a short putt on the 16th hole, losing his chance for the playoff.

Pott finished with a 65 for 268.

George Knudson had a 64 for 269

and Jay Dolan and Bud Holscher were tied at 272.

Defending champion Art Wall

Jr. and British Open champion

Tony Lama were in the 276

bracket, and Gene Littler, who scored a great 62 in the first round, finished with a 71 for 274.

Casper finished in a threesome ahead of Ellis and Pott. It appeared he had things sewed up.

But Ellis drew closer with a 45-foot putt on number 15, then a 12-footer for a birdie on number 17, and the 45-foot shaker on number 18.

Salem Falls To Boardman

SALEM — Boardman High

ran its unbeaten streak to 9

straight with a 70-50 margin

over Salem here Saturday night.

Salem kept pace with the Spartans for the first half trailing 34-32 at the intermission

mark.

Jim Geller's 18 points paced

Boardman while Rick Gregg led

Salem with 20.

The Quakers show a 2-7 record.

Minerva Tops Leetonia Five

MINERVA — Jim Elliott, 6-1

junior, and Jerry Starkey teamed up for 65 points to lead Minerva to a 98-72 victory over

Leetonia here Saturday night.

Elliott poured in 36 points

while teammate Starkey added

29 markers.

Leetonia with a 1-8 record

now, scored mostly from the foul line converting 40 of 61 attempts. Jim Rance led the Bears with 27 points on 6 fielders and 15 fouls.

Barron Selected As Head Of UFL

NEW YORK — United

Football League officials named outgoing West Virginia Gov. W.

W. Barron as UFL commissioner

during a meeting here Sunday.

He replaces Columbus attorney George Garaff, who announced his resignation because of the pressure of his law practice.

Barron ended four years as

West Virginia governor today

when Hulett C. Smith of Beckley, W. Va., was sworn in at noon as the state's 27th chief executive.

League officials also announced that UFL offices will be moved to Charleston from Columbus, Ohio.

Representatives from the eight-team UFL met during the weekend session with officials of the Atlantic Coast Football League.

A spokesman said the two leagues discussed mutual problems, but denied that a merger was in the offing.

A representative of the 14-team ACFL said, however, "we want to keep the matter open for future consideration.

OFF THE RECORD

"The way I figure it, some fellow must like me quite a lot to spend 50 cents for a 'drop dead card'."

How Can I?
By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What can I do about some of my stairs which have developed annoying squeaks?

A.—Try driving pairs of two-inch finishing nails through the tread (top of the step) into the riser (the vertical board between the steps). Angle your nails in each pair slightly toward each other, "V" shaped, so that they will be less likely to pull out.

Q.—How can I make a good job of cleaning my eyeglasses?

A.—Most opticians recommend an occasional soap-and-water bath for your glasses to remove the film of oil that gathers from the skin. Rinse, and polish with soft tissues.

Q.—How can I test bread dough to determine whether or not it has risen sufficiently for baking?

A.—Press your finger into the dough. If the impression disappears, the bread is ready for baking. If the impression remains, the bread must have more time for rising.

Q.—What can I do when I happen to mar a finished furniture surface with a hammer?

A.—Sometimes you can raise the grain of the wood back into place by covering the area with several sheets of damp wrapping paper and pressing over this with a hot iron. This expands the wood fibers.

Q.—How can I clean the debris out of a drainpipe that goes across and under my driveway with both ends open?

A.—Cut a semi-circular block of wood with a diameter slightly smaller than the inside of your drainpipe, and secure this to the end of a long pole. Then all you have to do is start at one end of the pipe, pushing the leaves and debris completely through and out the other end.

Junior Editors Quiz on SIAM

QUESTION: In what country is Siam?

ANSWER: Siam—or Thailand, as it more generally called—is not "in" any country, for it is a separate country itself. Its official name, in its own language of Thai, is "Huang Thai" or "Land of the Free." Thailand lies in south-eastern Asia, in a part of the continent which juts southward. The Bay of Bengal and India are to the west, the South China Sea and the Philippine Islands to the east. It is the only southeastern Asiatic country which has never been under a European power. Thailand's neighbor countries of Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam to the east have been much in the news recently. The tropical countries in this part of the world are among the most romantic and fascinating places on earth. The temple guards and architecture which we illustrate are typical of their exotic character. Siamese people are gentle and light hearted. Many live on boats, and much commerce is carried on over the waterways in tiny craft such as we show, with people standing up to pole or paddle. The Siamese cat, with his startling blue eyes and lean, graceful body, has made the name of Siam familiar all over America.

FOR YOU TO DO: What is it about a Siamese cat which is so interesting? There is probably one in your neighborhood. Visit him and try to find out. One Siamese cat owner put it this way: "These cats think they are people."

Lana Sharp of McClelland, Iowa, wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you may win the weekly grand prize of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia.
